IGNORANT EVALUATION. Marks the Register's Senseless Reply.

It Can Adduce No Argument or Reasonable Reason For Its Position.

The vagrant reply in today's Register to the question of why it is so far from the truth is a masterpiece of ignorance. The Register is a well-known newspaper, and its position is well established. It is not a vagrant, and its reply is not a senseless one. It is a reasoned and logical one, and it is based on facts and evidence.

A New Yellow Fever Theory. Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 21.—Armed with credentials from city authorities and medical boards, Dr. J. J. Knott, of Atlanta, has gone to Montgomery to make a test of his theory for the cure of yellow fever.

Dr. Knott, who has been through two epidemics, holds that yellow fever is caused from the introduction of phosphorus into the system, which takes place when there is deficiency of ozone and humidity, and that the disease is contracted during the night.

He therefore claims that the antidotes for phosphorus poisoning are the remedies that have proven the most effective in yellow fever. To carry out this theory he would establish acid factories in the localities subject to the disease.

DESPERATE BRIDGE TOUGHS.

Attack Conductor Hansbro Up the Road and Two Teeth Knocked Out In the Fray.

His Engineer Took to His Heels and Ran.—An Investigation Will Be Instituted At Once.

Conductor Will Hansbro, of the Illinois Central, was badly used up by a gang of toughs at West Point, Ky. He is in the city today minus two teeth and a few other things.

Night before last he came out of Louisville in charge of a through freight train.

He found four or five bridge men aboard, with annual passes, which were, however, good only on freight trains. He put them off at Meadow Lawn, fifteen miles out of Louisville, and did not for a moment suspect that they had again boarded the train.

At West Point he went into a small room, lantern in hand, to register, and when he stepped out and began talking to his engineer, one of the toughs stepped up and struck him a terrific blow in the mouth, breaking two teeth. He fell, and was assisted to his feet by the engineer, whereupon he was struck and knocked down by another one of the thugs.

They then took his lantern and threw it over the top.

The engineer by this time had taken to his heels. When the conductor recovered his composure he asked who struck him and one of the desperadoes replied with an oath he did, displaying a big pistol. They all then disappeared.

Conductor Hansbro notified Supt. Harahan by wire, and gave information that may lead to their apprehension by tracing them through their railroad passes. He then came on to Paducah.

FIRE BUG IN MASSAC. Two Barns Burned In One Day.

Mr. Linn and Oscar Kinneman Lose Barns and Provender.

Residents of Illinois, opposite the city, especially around "Stringtown," are considerably excited over current rumors of a "fire bug" in that locality.

Yesterday morning early Mr. Wm. Linn lost his barn and house by fire, entailing a loss of about $500. The barn, around which there had been absolutely no fire, caught first, and the sparks set fire to the house.

Yes, a layman, while Mr. Oscar Kinneman, of the same neighborhood, and his family were at dinner, a passer-by informed them that their hay stack was burning. Mr. Kinneman was astonished to see a small flame on the east end of the stack.

The whole pile went like tinder, and he had not long to wait before the hay stack caught and was also burned. The loss to him is $1,000, and it is a real sorrow to him, as he has no insurance on either.

The hay stack caught in a mysterious way, unless somebody set it off, as it was nearly half a mile from the nearest dwelling.
